	Find articles in the newspaper about the Parade of Nations and write your own newspaper style article about it.	Many languages are spoken during the Olympics. Are there articles about how athletes and judges understand each other?	Calculate the time difference between Paris and your town or where you vacationed this summer.	Events will occur in many places in France. Map the locations of events you would like to see.	Read the newspaper carefully to see what Olympic scientific concepts or terms you find and make a list of these.
4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	Look at pictures that accompany articles and list reasons you feel these support the story.	Find articles about the languages spoken and look for information about the most and least common of these.	With so many different events, create a sorted list of the various types of scoring; race times, game scores, etc.	Using articles that explain how the many cultures are supported, write a report about approaches you think should be taken.	Science and sports go together. Find articles about advances, such as uniforms that improve performance or adaptive devices for Paralympians.
