Sunshine Week Sunshine Laws require transparency in many governmental actions.	Find articles or columns that demonstrate how the professional press informs citizens about their rights to access public information.	Write a letter to your local newspaper and ask for examples of how the Freedom of Information Act is applied locally.	Contact the local newspaper for information about FOI requests and develop a chart to represent the data.	Why is it important to have Sunshine Laws, which require transparency in many governmental actions?	Look through the newspaper for science articles and decide if any would merit a FOI request.

	Write a letter to the editor with your views on the importance of activities such as band, debate or sports in schools.	The vernal equinox is today. Use words from the newspaper to write a short story about the first day of Spring.	Measure and calculate the area of three ads or pictures in square centimeters, square millimeters, and square meters.	Search for ads that use maps or directions, then rate how effective the maps or directions are.	Find ads or photos that incorporate aspects of simple machines such as levers, pulleys or inclined planes.
